Summary:

The analysis shows that approximately 88.34% of the reviews are positive, which reflects a high level of customer satisfaction with the products.

Around 10.05% of the reviews are negative, while only 1.61% are neutral. Most negative feedback is related to concerns such as product taste, packaging issues, and delivery experience.

An interesting pattern observed in the data is that some reviews with lower ratings still contain positive language, indicating a gap between the numerical rating and the written opinion.

Overall, the findings suggest that while customers are generally happy, there is still room for improvement in certain areas.

It is recommended that the company should focus on improving packaging quality and ensuring consistent product standards to enhance customer experience and reduce negative reviews.
